Trio Of Convicts Are Recaptured In Nashville

TWO TAKEN WHEN DETECTIVE KRIGER WINS PISTOL FIGHT

Lee Allen Shot Twice In The Leg; Pal Is Also Captured

SHELBY PARK IS SCENE OF BATTLE

Convicts Took His Gun Away From Park Policeman

(Associated Press)

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 10—Lee Allen, of Carroll county, one of the leaders in the break Friday night at the Tennessee penitentiary, and Charles N. White, Shelby county, were recaptured just before noon today in Shelby park here, after a gun fight between Allen and city detective Gus Kiger, in which Allen was shot twice in the leg.

The park caretaker, a few minutes before had notified the police station that two men had overpowered a park policeman and taken his gun Officers were rushed to the scene and the two convicts, still holding the park policeman prisoner, were located hiding in the brush.

Earlier in the day city policeman had recaptured Mac Wilcox, leaving 14 of the escaped prisoners still at liberty at noon.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 10.—After imprisoning guards in cells at the state prison, 17 white convicts sawed through window bars, commandered a West Nashville street car and road a mile away, then robbed a motorist of his automobile and escaped shortly after 9 o'clock Friday night.

Led by A. H. Martindale, Chattanooga, and James Whitsol, Memphis, life termers, serving for murder, the little army of desperate men had not been heard of early this morning.

Prisoners who escaped follow: A. H. Martindale, Lee Allen, Gerald Scrottrel, Howard Barr, Charles White, Mose Wilcox, Donald White, W. A. Craig, James Oliver, Jim Whitshel, M. H. Logsdon, W. A. Amendale, Jesse Hedgpath, Thomas Garretty, John Jordan, Lloyd Lowe and Roy Brotch.

Guards W. H. Dodson and W. C. Dinwiddie were in the act of locking up white prisoners on the first floor of the east wing. They were confronted with the prisoners, the leader holding a pistol in his hand. They surrendered, only to find after they had been relieved of their pistols and imprisoned in the very cells they had intended to put the convicts, that the man who first commanded "Hands up" had used a wooden pistol. It had evidently been carved, very skillfully, inside the prison.

Probable Joint Meeting Talked

A probable joint meeting is being talked today by members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, following the receipt of a letter from the Florence Junior organization, suggesting that a joint gathering be held either in the Twin Cities or the Tri-Cities at an early date. The meeting would be held in the interests of the further effort to obtain co-operation throughout the Tennessee Valley chain of cities.

Rev. Troxler Still Shows Improvement

Rev. John A. Troxler, of Mayfield, Ky., who was stricken while enroute here to become pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, still is improving according to word received here. It still is doubtful, however, whether he will be able to resume his work in the ministry.

Fun Side Shown In Being Chief State Executive

"How far is it to Florence?" that from the foghorn voice of Governor W. W. Brandon, on his way to the heart of the Muscle Shoals district, on tour with a party of friends and executives. The governor addressed a small boy standing by the roadside and received 'I dunno," for an answer. 'Plain Bill" Brandon and his friends had suffered the misfortune of encountering a nail and were delayed with tire trouble. "Who is the Governor of Alabama?" the governor's voice boomed still directed to the slip of a lad who was content to watch the tire changing proceedings. "I dunno and don't give a d.....," the lad fired back. That is the substance of a story of one of the happier events in the life of a chief executive, going over the cities today.

MRS. BOBBITT IS TO ENTER COMPETITION

Winner Of Contest In North Section Now In Birmingham

Mrs. Nallie B. Bobbitt, winner of the essay sponsored by the National Electric Lighting Association, open to woman employes of the Alabama Power company, is in Birmingham today to attend the state competitions to be held at the auditorium in the Alabama Power company building tonight. Misses Amanda Pride and Jennie Davidson accompanied Mrs. Bobbitt to the Magic City.

Mrs. Bobbitt recently won division honors against other offices of the company in a contest held at the Lyons Hotel, her subject being, "Public Utilities as an Investment."

The winner of the state contest will go to Pinehurst, N. C., and then to Atlantic City for the national competition.

Placed In Jail On Theft Charge

A man giving the name of R. W. Rollins is in the Decatur jail, following his arrest by C. M. Riggsbee, Decatur police chief, in connection with the alleged theft of poultry Friday night. Six Rhode Island hens are said to have been sold to R. A. Milam grocer on West Vine street, Decatur. The grocer is said to have become suspicious and notified city authorities. He paid the man by check. Later the man is declared to have been found at Calvin & Raven, grocery store at the corner of Bank and Church street, attempting to cash the check. He was taken in custody and placed in the Decatur city jail, awaiting trial Monday morning.

Increase Seen In Farming Business

Asked today if he saw any increase this year in agricultural trade in this section, B. A. Turner of Turner Coal and Grain company, declared that business this year has increased in farm lines approximately 50 per cent. He attributed a continued improvement in the system of county roads as a main factor in the increase and likewise expressed confidence in a newspaper advertising program, intended chiefly for the farmer, in the seed and feed lines.

Similar Getaway Is Made As In The Hartselle Case

(Associated Press)

BELLBUCKLE, Tenn., April 10—The Bank of Bellbuckle was robbed early this morning of approximately $15,000. The loot of the robbers also included the stamp supply of the local postoffice. The robbery was discovered by the porter when he opened the bank to clean up. The vault doors were open and a hole large enough to admit a man's body was burned in the safe door. The time lock of the safe was put out of commission by the acetelyne torch operation and officials had not been able to open the safe to check up. Tracks of a large automobile were found in the rear of the bank and between 2 and three o'clock residents on the highway west of here heard a car pass going at a terrific speed.

The bank was insured and opened for business, cash being supplied by the three Shelbyville banks.

Potatoes Range At High Levels

(Associated Press)

CHICAGO, April 10—Potatoes were declared today to have reached the highest price for this time of the year the market has ever known. Wholesale merchants are now paying from $5.50 to $5.75 per 100 pounds for the remainder of the fall crop. Although the price has risen almost $1.00 during the last week, merchants declare there is no danger of a shortage, the spring crop being too far along.

Another Hartselle Suspect Is Held

NEW ORLEANS, April 10—A man, said by police to be Lewis Hart Austin, 32, was arrested here today and is being held as a fugitive from justice, said to be wanted in Hartselle, Ala., Salt Lake City and by Arkansas authorities.

He came here yesterday from Jacksonville, Fla.

SAVE THE BABIES TO BE PLEA OF HEALTH OFFICIAL TO BOARD

Rural Sanitation Plan Needs More Funds To Be Effective

MORE INSPECTORS WILL BE SOUGHT

Mortality Rate Higher In Rural Area Than In City Sections

A plan for extending the work of the health department, especially in the matter of rural sanitation, will be laid before the Morgan County board of revenue by Dr. H. C. McRee, Morgan County health officer, at the meeting of the board early in May.

Dr. McRee will speak to the board for an increase in appropriation made by the county to the health work, in order that at least three and possibly four inspectors may be employed for a year or so, to install the department's sanitation program all over the county.

Figures recently compiled by the health department reveal that the infant mortality rate in Morgan county is much higher in the rural sections than it is in the more thickly populated areas. One of the greatest contributing factors to this situation, health officials believe, is the lack of sanitation in many of the rural sections.

For the sake of the babies, the health department desires to improve the sanitation of all sections of the county. Lack of funds prevents the realization of this desire at present, only one inspector now being available for the entire county.

The work it is estimated, would cost approximately $400 per month until such time as the program of the department has been put into effect in every section of Morgan county. After that, the cost would be very much less.

The figures on infant mortality show that for every infant death in the cities in this county, here are approximately three deaths of infants in the rural territory.

5 Installment Billions

5,000,000 Radio Sets

By ARTHUR BRISBANE. (Copyright, 1926 By The Star Co. For Albany-Decatur Daily.

In offering Mr. Brisbane's daily editorials The Albany-Decatur Daily does not necessarily concur with his opinions, but offers them as the sentiments of the highest paid editorial writer in this country.

THE people bought five billions of dollars worth of goods on the installment plan in 1925, and some say, 'we are rushing into bankruptcy." But don't worry. Money well spent by those that can pay helps spender and seller and hurts nobody.

If you want a piano, radio set, automobile and you know you can pay for it, get it now and enjoy it while the rich buy real estate and stocks on installments. A good automobile is worth more than a house.

THE important thing is that installment business should be on a sound basis, not encouraging extravagance, charging excessive rates for time payments, or encouraging a man with a car, good for two or three years more, to get rid of it prematurely and glut the used car market.

What hurts is waste, not spending.

BEGINS BAPTIST CAMPAIGN

REV. E. B. FARRER

Reverend E. B. Farrer, evangelist, who opens the revival series of services at Central Baptist church Sunday morning, is a man of wide experience in the revival field. However, he served as pastor at Holt, Ala., before taking over the charge offered him by the Morgan County Baptist Association. It is the intention of that organization and Rev. Farrer to spread the influence of a worthy work throughout this county and series of meetings will be conducted all over the county during Rev. Farrer's term of service.

It is anticipated that the services tomorrow will be opened with the church seating capacity entirely taken up, Baptists having fallen in line with the services through the week's program of cottage prayer meetings arranged by Rev. W. P. Reeves and prominent church leaders. The effort of the church in this present meeting will in the main be the attraction of others who are now outside the church urging church affiliation.

TROUBLE MARKS PARADE OF KIDDIES

Clashes Occur When 2 Lines Of March Are Interrupted

(Associated Press)

PASSAIC, N. J., April 10—Trouble developed today when police broke up two parades of children organized by textile strikers. It started as officers were attempting to remove several adults, who had been arrested while heading or encouraging the parade, for which permission had been refused.

One uniformed man, said by some to have been a member of the police, was beaten into insensibility with a blackjack. Thirty mounted and motorcycle police rode through the crowd, clubbing them, in an effort to disperse the strikers.

Many on fire escapes and windows booed the officers. Storekeepers hastily closed up their shops in an effort to protect property. Members of the American Legion, which operates a strikers relief store at Fourth and Monroe streets, were involved in another clash in which several arrests were made.

Strikers have booed and otherwise annoyed members of their ranks who went into the Legion's relief station and today, when an altercation developed, police went to the assistance of the Legionnaires.

Governor's Party Is Here Overnight

Governor William W. Brandon and party left today for Montgomery after having been the guests of friends here last night, returning from a tour of the Muscle Shoals district and an inspection at Cherokee. Included in the party were: Atticus Mullins, Judge C. R. Bricken and Mr. Dexter. The entire trip was made overland.

KIWANIS PLAN DANVILLE TRIP

Fifty Are Expected To Enter Second Of Farm Meetings

Arrangements are being completed today by Fred Hunt, chairman of the Farm Relations Committee of the Albany Decatur Kiwanis club, for a trip to Danville on Friday night, April 16th this being the second of the scheduled trips by the local club for this year. The former scheduled trip was at Somerville in March, and was largely attended both by Kiwanians and citizens of that community.

It is estimated that 50 or more local Kiwanians will make the trip and the leaders expressed an opinion today that probably 500 people of the Danville community would be present at the meeting. It will be remembered last year that the Danville meeting on the local programme was very largely attended and a very enthusiastic meeting from every standpoint.

SEVEN BIDS FOR THE ENTIRE PROJECT ARE PUT ON FILE TODAY

Two Bidders Would Be Willing To Operate Part of Plant

POWER GROUP UNITE IN OFFER

Battle Creek Man Is New Entrant And Real Dark Horse

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 10—Seven bids for the lease of the entire government property at Muscle Shoals and two bids for a part of it have been received by the joint congressional committee.

The bidders include: The Union Carbide company, Eton H. Hooker, Frederick T. Hepburn, F. E. Castleberry of Shreveport, La., Lloyd H. Smith of Battle Creek, Mich., the American Cyanamid company jointly with the American Nitrates Corporation and the Muscle Shoals Power distributing company, associated with the Muscle Shoals Fertilizer company.

Bids for part of the property were made by C. E. Graff, of the American Nitrogen Products company of Seattle, Wash., and J. E. Levering, a Washington engineer.

The committee closed its doors to further bidding at noon today with announcement that if any more come in "they simply will be filed with congress."

The bid of the group of Southern power companies was presented under the name of the Muscle Shoals Power Distributing company and the Muscle Shoals Fertilizer company.

The companies associated in the bid are the Tennessee Electric Power company, Chattanooga, Memphis company, Chattanooga, Memphis Power and Light company, Memphis, Mississippi Power company, Gulfport, Miss., Mississippi Power and Light company, Jackson, Miss., Mississippi Delta Power and Light company, Greenville, Mis., Alabama Power company, Birmingham, Gulf Power company, Pensacola, Fla., Kentucky, Utilities company, Louisville, Gulf Electric company, Mobile, Georgia Railway and Power company, Atlanta, Louisiana Power and Light company, Monroe, La., Arkansas Light and Power company, Pine Bluff, Ark., and New Orleans Public Service Inc., New Orleans.

The bid of Lloyd H. Smith, of Battle Creek, Mich., came unexpectedly and without notice. This represents his first appearance among the Muscle Shoals bidders and the committee declined to give any information on the substance of his or any of the other bids.

The bid of the American Nitrates Corporation is guaranteed by the American Cynamid company and is in the name of the organization under which the Cynamid company will operate Muscle Shoals if their bid is accepted.

The committee has given more time and consideration to the proposals of the Union Carbide company, the American Cynamid company and the Power companies than any other and, until several unexpected bids were received, their recommendations to congress were expected to be confined to one of the three.

Consideration of the bids will be started by the committee at executive sessions beginning next week and they are expected to continue until April 26, when the committee is required to report. The bid of Eton H. Hooker, who formerly sponsored a proposal known as the Hooker-White-Atterbury proposal, disclosed that W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad no longer is associated with the bidder.

Hooker explained that he was associated only with J. G. White, a chemi-

She Learned About Women

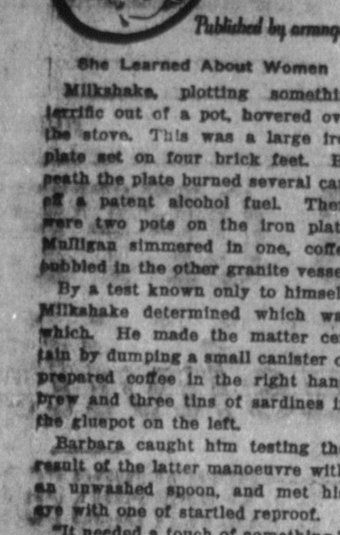

Milkshake, plotting something terrific out of a pot, hovered over the stove. This was a large iron plate set on four brick feet. Beneath the plate burned several cans of a patent alcohol fuel. There were two pots on the iron plate. Mulligan simmered in one, coffee bubbled in the other granite vessel.

By a test known only to himself, Milkshake determined which was which. He made the matter certain by dumping a small canister of prepared coffee in the right hand brew and three tins of sardines in the gluepot on the left.

Barbara caught him testing the result of the latter manoeuvre with an unwashed spoon, and met his eye with one of startled reproof.

"It needed a touch of something," he mumbled doubtfully, and retreated.

Barbara cleaned a broken cup as best she could with a piece of newspaper and dipped herself a cup of coffee. It warmed and did not kill. The hour, by now, would be midnight. Many of the bums dozed. A group kept awake. Whenever, in the throes of a Mulligan night-mare, a sleeper grew noisy, one of the wakers rose and kicked the offender into a new position. Then he would return and join again the talk, which was nightmare too.

By a test known only to himself, Milkshake determined which was which.

It was talk of towns, of epochal handouts, of hostile and friendly territory, of jungles where the tramps made camp, of stakes to be gotten, of various kinds of whiskey. Milkshake recollected longingly the "Rub o' the Brush" he had swigged over the historic bar of Heinegebubeler in Chi, a bar, it was stated, from which all the knotholes had been eaten by the high-powered restoratives spilled thereon.

"Foist time I took a shot o' that stuff I jumped so high I bounced t'ree times," he said. "A dime a shot in the ol' times. Four bits was plenty to get plastered in them days. There was a boig for ya. Reformers butchered it. I drifted t'rough a couple o' years ago an' went over to the ol' south side. I could of almos' cried to see the billboards stuck over the fronts o' houses where many's the night I saved flop-joint dough by buyin' beer."

* * * * *

Booth bestirred himself. "The philosophy of conquering the female——"

The Dean looked up from his book for a moment and snapped: "It's not philosophy. It's biology." And resumed reading.

"Call it what you will," said Booth. He rose and began to pace the floor of the freight. "For my part, it is an art. I have been married six times."

There was scattered applause.

"You are a simple, a primitive now, to whom love is but a seasonal urge," reproved Booth sonorously. "I am speaking now of love as an art."

"How you do this?" questioned Helsingfors.

"I never reveal professional secrets," replied Booth stiffly.

Solly began a detailed account of a first-class matter in which the heroine was the pulchritudinous postmistress of a prominent village. It reeked. Barbara longed to kill him, to torture first and then slay. She glanced toward Bravo, rolling lonely in the shadows. He was awake, but paid no heed to Solly's narrative. Here she was, a woman in a freight car full of slewsy bums, and they were foully maligning her sex. Why didn't Bravo come to her defense? Why didn't he get up and strangle the boasting Solly, choke the filthy lies down his greasy gullet?

But were they lies, . . . and wasn't he a man? She rolled over and pillowed a buzzing head on her arms. She dozed fitfully and had a strange dream. . . . J. B. Hardiman was a tramp, asking for a handout.

Water dripping from the roof of the car awoke her. She found her head pillowed against another sleeper. His mouth was a gaping, toothless chasm. She sat up and slithered away.

Barbara made up her mind. She would be a vagabond, yes. But she'd travel alone. It was a scrofulous company. She loathed them, every one.

Bravo had said nothing. He was of the rotten sex. She knew now why, in her heart of hearts, every woman considered every man her born enemy. Men were hateful, traducing, vulgar, devoid of gentility, chivalry and decency.

Bravo had heard, and without protest, without comment. She hated him, too.

She hated all the generations of round-heeled daughters of Eve by whose records man could prove his rooster boast. And why, oh why, did life give her so many excellent reasons for hating the female, Barbara Brown?

Every candle was extinguished. In the gloom of the car faces gleamed with a ghostly radiance, as of lard by moonlight.

Preparatory to making the full stop at Orlamonde, the train began to lose speed. Five minutes since, Bravo had ordered them to douse the glims. It was decided to disembark in the railway siding which mushroomed from the main line outside this small Southern town, rather than risk an entrance into Pine Springs through the well-policed freight yard of the larger town.

Barbara was directly in front of the side-door of the freight when it was opened. She shrank back with a cry and, throwing up her arm, shielded the abnormally enlarged pupils of her eyes from the blinding spectacle of sun and earth-green glory which stood revealed.

They left the freight one by one. In her turn Barbara stood in the doorway and prepared to leap.

"Come on, yellow-belly, jump off or ya get kicked off." Milkshake, insulting by way of being emphatic (a masculine trick to which Barbara was now fairly well callousedd), was behind her, and merciless.

She hitched up her pants, closed her eyes and leaped. She took her inevitable bruising without a whimper. Pain was small change in the hobo's life. She assured herself that Alley was unhurt and limped down the path that Mr. Booth, Helsingfors, Solly, The Dean and the half dozen other tramps who had preceded her had taken. It led to a clump of thinned woods.

Within it the boes at once stripped to the waist and soon were spluttering over a dish-pan of water. In the foreground stood a hairy monster of a man. Barbara, with horrified eyes, watched him as he dashed cupped handfuls of water against his chest. The water disappeared into the matted shirt of black hair with which nature, in one of her intense moods, had provided him.

One could, thought Barbara, carry the business of being a he-man too far.

She kept a respectful distance between her squeamish self and this overdone male. She started for the other end of the shed. Here, too, she was repelled.

No use talking, she'd have to become a man among men by easy stages.

From the long top pole of the shed hung one-half of the moist pink carcass of a pig. A large and jovial negro stood by. Punctuating his discourse with resounding slaps dealt on the defenseless departed's smooth flanks with the palm of his hand, he recited the Odyssey of its capture.

"They's a wagon goin' down the pike like a fiah injin. Ah hops it an' ah gets a ha'f-Nelson on mah lady fren', an' off we rolls into the mud like Zbyszko an' th' Strangler goin' to th' mat. On mah way heah ah washbes mah lady fren' off in the creek. An' then ah brings this bacon right on home.

"Sweet lady po'k chops!"

He finished his tale on the note of ecstasy.

He flung his arms about the lady fren" and planted six square inches of gummy kisses on her gleaming ribs.

With Barbara a Lazarus at their banquet, the men went simply and grossly to their object of turning the raw pork into food. A razor was produced by the negro. Each hacked himself a chunk, spitted it on a green lance cut from underbrush and roasted his dinner to his taste over a bonfire in the center of the clearing.

Victim of a city-bred stomach, Barbara loitered on the edge of the circle. Here Bravo came upon her, sitting with her cat between her feet, her chin resting upon her knees. He contemplated her before he spoke, and for the first time had a swift impression of the romance concealed and silent in the heart of this strangely beautiful boy he had initiated into hobodom. He took quick note of the slender white neck under the rim of Barbara's cap and of the slim, unknuckled fingers which lay along her cheeks.

"Game kid," he privately commented. "But he'll never stand the gaff—without a lot of help."

When he addressed the stripling he was uncomfortably silenced by the outrageous beauty of the eyes which were suddenly turned upward to his from under the peak of his cap. He had to look away before he could coherently order his sentence.

"They're fools." He gestured toward the pig-addicts at the barbecue. "Mr. Armour'll have every cop in the county out hunting for his precious pig. You and I are going to head the hell out of here before it's too late." He paused. "Are you with me?"

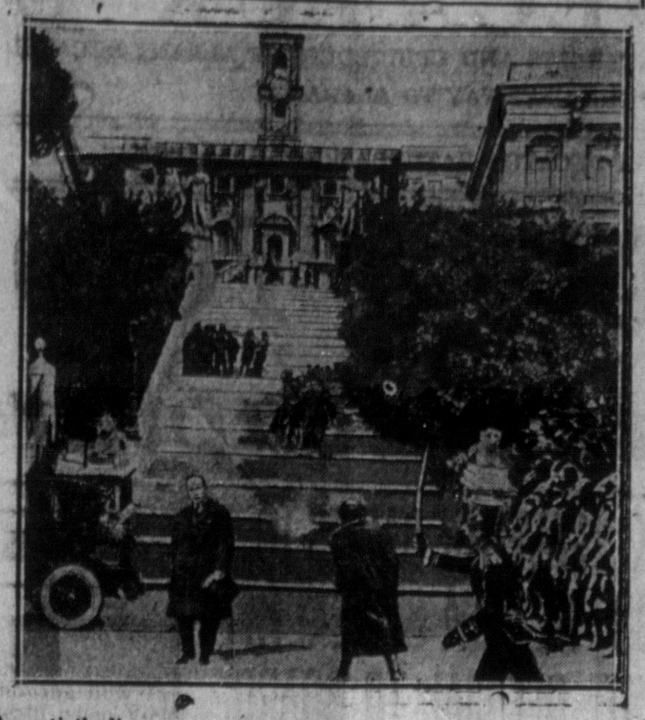

A lump in her throat choked her reply.

The world is full of little gods. Traffic cops, ferryboat captains, floorwalkers, hotel clerks. And Bravo, soft-spoken and insolent hetman of the difficult avocation to which Barbara had surrendered an unanchored heart, was clearly Jehovah to her first carload of bums.

CANADIAN ASSAILS PROHIBITION TODAY BEFORE THE SENATE

Support Of The Wet Cause Is Given By Russell

PRAISES THE LAW'S DEFEAT

He Believes Rum Profit Now Going For Good Cause

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Canada's experiments with prohibition were drawn upon today for evidence to support the wet cause before the Senate liquor committee.

Rounding out a week of hearings and with several days to go before exhausting the time alloted them, the wet leaders gave over most of today's session to questioning Canadians who have had active contact with dominion prohibition.

Francis William Russell of Winnipeg, president of the moderation league of Manitoba, told the committee that Western Canada, "never had such a crime wave before as we had during the last two years of prohibition."

"Thank God we have got rid of it now. It went out with the bootlegger and the rum run crew."

In 1916 Winnipeg voted dry by 10,000, he said, but in 1923 it returned 23,000 majority against prohibition.

"Seventy per cent of the women voted against prohibition," he continued, "they wanted to save their families. The only people who are not satisfied are the irreconciliable fanatics."

Declaring the present government control or liquor has resulted in an additional $3,000,000 revenue for the province which is used for roads, schools and hospitals, Mr. Russell added, that "the people now get the profits that the bootlegger used to get."

Senator Goff, republican asked for statistics as to the number of people who drank now and who drank during prohibition, but Mr. Russell could not give them. He said that "During prohibition the favorite indoor sport was to revile the law."

cal engineer of New York.

In a statement Mr. Hooker said he proposed to operate Muscle Shoals in partnership with the government for the primary purpose of manufacturing fertilizer. He now is engaged in the manufacture of chemicals at Niagara Falls.

The product on fertilizer would be limited to 8 per cent, with 75 per cent of the earnings of the enterprise going to the government. He estimated the total return to the government on a 50 year lease would be $300,000. The offer provides for a national Muscle Shoals council of 15 members, seven to be appointed by the president, seven by the company, and the other, who would be the chairman of the council, would be chosen on the recommendations of the governors of Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Tennessee and Kentucky. The seven appointees of the president would be made upon the joint recommendations of the secretary of war, agriculture, interior and labor, two of whom would represent the army, two agriculture and business and one labor and one the public.

The council would prescribe annually the equitable distribution of fertilizer, the amount and kind that shall be produced and marketed and the price at which it shall be sold.

12 Years Ago TODAY

From the Daily of April 10, 1914

Colonel C. C. Harris has been nominated by the eighth district democratic committee for congress, to fill out the unexpired term of the late Congressman Richardson.

A. C. Harte, formerly general secretary at Mobile, will speak tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Young Men's Christian Association on the work of that organization.

Almon and Callahan will be in the run-off for congress from the eighth district, returns today revealed conclusively.

A French dry cleaning plant will be established here by Columbia, Tenn., people.

Mrs. E. N. Penick has returned from a week's visit to relatives in Alpine, Ala.

The Daily admits that the residents of this glorious country have a certain amount of independence about them, but The Daily cannot concur in the theory that Americans are so darned contrary that they drink booze now because it is outlawed, and wouldn't drink it, should its sale be made lawful, the supply easy to obtain, the quality high and the price low.

The Knoxville Journal and the Nashville Banner devote considerable editorial space to a discussion of a movement already reviewed in The Daily, to-wit: That newspapers give more of their space to news of the arrest and convictions of criminals. The Journal recognizes the benefits to be derived from impressing upon the minds of the readers the fact that many criminals are called on to pay the penalty for their misdeeds, but laments that there are not more convictions. The Banner takes much the same attitude and says "It is pertinent to suggest that the best way, the only way, to get rid of crime news is to get rid of crime."

NASHVILLE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BOARD URGES MUNICIPAL ADVERTISING

Nashville soon will utilize advertising space to tell of the advantage of the Opportunity City, if the recommendations of the chamber of commerce board of directors is followed.

The Nashville civic board urges the other civic clubs of Nashville to join with the chamber of commerce in an advertising plan in behalf of the city. The Nashville Tennessean, describing the idea, says: "The success of similar ventures in Florida cities and in Atlanta and Chattanooga were pointed out."

Nashville is moving along in the right direction. Well placed publicity is a mighty factor these days in civic development.

SENATOR HEFLIN WINS PLAUDITS OF HIS COLLEAGUES BY HANDLING OF SHOALS BILL

Senator Heflin, who was called on to lead the fight in the senate over adoption of the house Muscle Shoals resolution ,when Senator Underwood became incapacitated by illness, not only won his legislative battle, but appears to have won the admiration of his colleagues as well.

From Washington words of commendation for Senator Heflin have come both from Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, and Senator Pat Harrisan, of Mississippi.

The success which crowned the senator's efforts in the senate in behalf of Muscle Shoals was particularly pleasing to the people of the Tennessee Valley and The Daily feels that its readers would be interested in the praise given by the colleagues of Senator Heflin.

"I wish to say one word with reference to the junior senator from Alabama (Mr. Heflin). I speak with some degree of knowledge and with absolute confidence when I say there is no man in public life today whose heart is more thoroughly in harmony with the interests of the great agricultural and consuming masses of this country than is the heart of the junior senator from Alabama. In his entire service here the senator from Alabama (Mr. Heflin) has been brave, loyal, and able and has always been absolutely fearless and faithful in his devotion to the farmers and the great body of the American people, according to his conception of their best and highest interests."

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, adds his tribute to that of the senator from North Carolina, and he says of Mr. Heflin:

"I want to pay my tribute to the distinguished senator from Alabama (Mr. Heflin). Mr. President, he has borne the brunt of this fight. In the consideration of this question in the prior congresses his distinguished colleague (Mr. Underwood) handled it splendidly. In the discussion of this resolution the distinguished senior senator from Alabama has been denied, because of illness, from taking part; but, sirs, the splendid qualities of his leadership has been fully supplied by his colleague, the distinguished junior senator from Alabama (Mr. Heflin.) This measure could not have been handled better nor higher results obtained by any other. The junior senator has displayed those high talents of leadership in defending and pressing this measure that insures success. For weeks he has met every attack and constantly pressed every opening. His adroitness, perseverance, knowledge, and eloquence are about to be rewarded in the final adoption of this house proposal."

DUNCAN PLEADS FOR ADOPTION OF TEN SUGGESTIONS BY FARMERS OF ALABAMA

The recently opened radio broadcasting station at Auburn is being used by the Alabama extension service to carry its messages to the farmers of Alabama. For six years the extension bureau has been working for the benefit of the farmers of this state, particularly in the adoption of what the Anniston Star terms a "safe, wise, business-like program for a permanent system of agriculture and home life in this state."

This program has been supported strongly by the newspapers of Alabama and whatever progress has been made in the fight has been due largely to the untiring efforts put forth by the leaders and the publicity they received from the press.

A new force now has been joined the movement and the radio is welcomed by farmers, farm leaders and the newspapers alike as another means of reaching every planter with the messages of the extension service.

L. N. Duncan, director of the service, in a recent radio address, made the following ten specific recommendations to the farmers of Alabama:

1. "In each county there should be an upstanding, highly-trained, courageous, energetic county man and woman agent to lead the movement, supported by an adequate staff.'

2. "There must be a constructive, business-like, non-partisan, non-political organiaztion of farmers under their own leaders.

3. "Distribution of crop acreage on each farm as will result in:

(a) "Production of feed to supply farm livestock.

(b) "Production of food as may be economically grown.

(c) "Production of food and feed commodities for sale as may be economically grown and marketed.

(d) "Growth of only as many acres in cotton as can be fertilized and handled under boll weevil conditions and labor scarcity.

(c) "Development and maintenance of soil fertility to a dedgree as will result in profitable yields.

(f) "Elimination of costly labor peaks and economic distribution of labor over the season.

4. "Such increased use of machinery and workstock as will enable farm labor to compete with other sections in production and to meet varying prices in relation to demand.

5. "Growth of livestock neeed for farm use, and such surplus of livestock products as may be economically grown and marketed.

6. "Recognition and practice of the principle of quality production to find the most profitable consumption.

7. "Recognition and practice of principles of cooperative buying and selling of farm commodities and orderly marketing.

8. "Use of the least expensive systems of farm credit that agriculture may enjoy equal benefits with industry and commerce in credits.

9. "Hearty co-operation with official agencies in disseminating dependable information as to farm practices and production.

10. "Farm home built for convenience and comfort and a standard of living for the family in keeping with American life."

The recommendations which Dr. Duncan beseeches the farmers of this state to adopt have been preached all over Morgan county by J. C. Ford, county farm agent here and the progress that this county is making in agriculture probably is largely due to his efforts.

It would be a mighty fine thing if every farmer who reads the recommendations of Mr. Duncan would keep them, where they might be consulted from time to time They certainly are worthy of constant application

A TRAIN OF THOUGHTS for the Sabbath and Other Days

BY J. E. BLAIR

Be good, but never attempt it alone. For goodness means sharing—it means sharing life itself. But love is necessary to all who share their lives with others, and love is possible only as we know God, who we are told IS love!

The problem of right living therefore, becomes the problem of knowing God—a pretty big proposition! But in all ages men have sought to know God—no other proof of man's divine nature is needed!

Many say they seek to know God, by a study of the way God does things. For example a study of botany will show in a measure how God makes a flower. A study of any of the phenominon of nature, will make clear a great deal concerning God—and nature study should be encouraged—but only as a kind of "side-line." The big way and the only approved way of studying God is to know Him as a person. Just as the proper study of mankind is man, so the proper study of God is God Himself.

Now if you wish to know a person, do you study the plows and other tools he may make—yes—what a man constructs tells a great deal about his character. And for the same reason, a study of the universe God made, helps toward a knowledge of Him. The Psalmist said: "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth His handi-work, day unto day uttereth speech and night unto night showeth knowledge." But that same Psalmist became a murderer! He did not have a very high appreciation of God at last! No, it is the greatest mistake in the world to attempt to know a God of love, and that God IS love by studying only ABOUT God.

Of course it is agreed that the God of love is revealed only in the life of Christ. Until He came, men saw as through a glass darkly. Truth was forever on the road to defeat before the time of Christ. He is the only being on this earth who ever MADE GOOD! And yet how many are willing to take His life as their example? All who really want to know the God of Love! Christ is hardly ever mentioned however, except by those who are expected to mention His name. And this class don't seem to give enough prominence to the only person who actually made good! A leading educator recently made a long speech on how to live and how to get others to live, but not once in the whole address was Christ's name mentioned! The speaker did manage to say at the last something about "the flame of God"—but what does all those high sounding references to God mean, unless we have some one to make us acquainted with God? If we are ever good, it will be in company with God, so why not learn to know Him?

men, sword swallowers, swarfs, giants that used to delight the populace. Contrast with that our modern moving picture, beautifully made. The world improves.

SHOOTING doesn't discourage Mussolini. With his nose plastered his ears deafened with gunfire, shrieking sirens, cries of 'Viva Mussolini," and "Viva Fascismo," Mussolini left yesterday for Tripoli, announcing his desire to convert the world to fascism.

RUSSIANS would convert the world to communism. Mussolini and Trotzky are exact opposites, and each has the same plan to make the world accept his ideas.

OF THE TWO, Mussolini makes more progress. The human race understands powerful dictators. But a man that wants to 'divide up" on a communist basis seems a dangerour novelty.

FIVE MILLION radio sets in the United States have 27,000,000 human beings listening in. Sad that so little broadcasting is worth attention. Science perfects the machinery but intelligence hasn't yet supplied worthy material. But that will come In future ages, the individual worth while will have as personal following an audence of 100,000,000 or 500,000,000. The written word will no longer compete.

TEN MILLION DOLLARS' worth of oil burned in California, two men killed. Lightning caused two storage lakes to explode. Those that spend money on lightning rods will wonder how valuable they really are Cannot scientists find a way, with high tension wires or otherwise, to protect oil wells and oil storage? How long before great conductors escort the lighting safely down from the clouds and use it as it comes down? Edison should work at that.

RUSSIA desires to enlist private capital in state industries.

Russian credit should be better now than ever. The public debt has been eliminated quite simply. Wealth in Russia, if developed, would be as great as our own. But there is the big but. If a nation repudiates one set of debts it might repudiate others.

CHICAGO will build streets hollow at the center. Higher at the cub concave, instead of convex. Moisture will run to the center of the street, a more sanitary less expensive plan.

Men learn slowly. Needles were used for 100,000 years before anybody thought of putting the eye in the point of the needle, thus making the sewing machine possible.

MRS. Drake, vice-president of the Child Study association, says parental instinct is disappearing. There are no more 'natural born parents." There are still fortunately plenty of natural born mothers, millions of them.

It is not afection but knowledge that mothers lack.

MEXICAN statistics show tha of 100 Mexican babies born, 48 live only a few monhs. Ignorance causes the deaths. Thanks largely to the pure milk campaign forced upon doctors and city government by Nathan Straus, this country takes better care of its babies. But thousands of mothers die in childbirth every year, unnecessarily, brutal neglect the cause. We have no grounds for boasting.

We Think It's Mighty Fair

We are so sure that you will like Goodyear Balloon Tires, that we are willing to put them on your car for a trial that won't cost you a cent.

Here's our proposition: We equip your car with a set of new Goodyear Balloons. Take in your old tires as part payment, and store them for you.

You drive two weeks on the Goodyear Balloons—anywhere, as you please, we know you'll be fair to them.

Then come back, and if you aren't satisfied, here's your money and your own tires back on. No hard feelings. Just as good friends as ever.

That shows we believe in Goodyear Balloon Tires. When do you want to start the trial?

Lady Says She Took Cardui and Never Saw Such Improvement—Was So Weak Couldn't Stand.

Weathersby, Miss.—Mrs. James M. Hall, of this place, writes that she was "getting weaker all the time" when Cardui, the woman's tonic, was first brought to her attention. After she had taken Cardui a while, she writes that she "never did see such an improvement."

"I suffered all the time and had pains all over," says Mrs. Hall. "I was so weak I could not stand. My skin was cold and flabby. I did not have any color. I had always been a very active woman—used to outdoor exercise, walking and going where I pleased, and to get down, not able to get myself a drink, was indeed a hardship.

"Nothing seemed to help me, till I began on Cardui. The first bottle seemed to strengthen me, and I sent for five more. By the time I had taken these, I was on my feet, going around, doing my work, gained in health and strength.

"I took two more bottles, and I am well and strong. Can work my garden. I haven't had any more sickness."

It's the Better Way

The Greatest Month

More commercial firms took deliveries of Graham Brothers Trucks in March than in any month in the Company's history.

January set a record, February brought another—and March surpassed them both.

When you realize that Graham Brothers are the largest exclusive truck manufacturers in the world this statement becomes a business message of genuine importance.

Record sales under such circumstances are the best possible confirmation of superior service.

SPORTS

Big Leaguers Age Average Hovers Near 28 Mark, So Rosters of Starters Show

(Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, April 10—Rosters of the sixteen major league baseball clubs, containing more than 350 prospective starters in the 1926 pennant races, reveal the average player as an athlete of 28 years, 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighing 172 pounds.

Definite physical requirements of the games have not eliminated the performer who takes a marked deviation from these figures, however, for nearly every club has its midget and its giant, its promising youth and its veteran warrior.

The little man of baseball nevertheless, is a rarity, and the rosters reveal a mere handful of players whose height is less than 5 feet, 6 inches.

The outstanding exception has brought to the Boston Braves its brilliant young second baseman, Walter (Doc) Gautreau, one of the curiosities of the major leagues. Gautreau, who leaped from the keystone sack of a sensational Holy Cross nine to fame with the Boston club, is the smallest man in baseball, a midget of 5 feet, 2 1-2 inches, weighing approximately 132 pounds.

At the other end of the line towering 6 feet, 6 inches from his cleated boots, is Connie Mack's pitching lath, Bryan Harris, revealed in the rosters as the tallest man on the major league diamond.

Bryan, however, has only one inch on Eppa Rixey, of the Red's hurling staff. There are several players of 6 feet, 4 inches, including Leo Dickerman, of the Cards, Bill Jacobson, of the Browns and Earl Sheeley of the White Sox.

Seven of the teams have at least one player who tips the beam beyond the 200-pound mark, with Buckeye, the Cleveland hurler at the head of the diamond "whales" with a generous lead at 225 pounds.

Babe Ruth, erstwhile home run king of the Yankees, is not far behind at 215, while "Tiny" Osborne of the Robins, Rixey, of the Reds, and Oscar Melilo, new outfielding find of the Indians, each weighs 210, according to the club rosters.

Although Gautreau holds the midget honors in both weight and height, Rabbit Maranville, who makes his start as a Robin this year, still is one of the smallest players in the game at 147 pounds. The Rabbit's height is given at 5 feet 5 inches, half an inch greater than that of Earl Adams, the Cub infielder. Charley Dressen, of the Reds, Max Flack, of the Cards, Jack Tavenor, of the Tigers and Ramon Herrera of the Red Sox each weighs less than 150.

All but two of the clubs have at least one player over 35 years of age and all have at least one starter under 25. Outstanding veterans are Babe Adams, of the Pirates, 43, Ty Cobb, of the Tigers, Walter Johnson, of the Senators and Grover Alexander of the Cubs, each 39; Zach Wheat, of the Robins, Fred Williams of the Phillies, Tris Speaker of the Indians Eddie Collins, of the White Sox and Grover Hartley of the Giants each 38.

Leading players in the early twenties are Charley Ruffing, Red Sox pitcher, Gautreau of the BZraves, Gordon Cochrane, Athletics' catcher; Wayland Dean, Phillies pitcher; Flint Rhem, Cardinal hurler, and Lou Gehrig, Yankee first sacker.

ALBANY HI TAKES HUNTSVILLE OVER

Local Lads Helpless Until Seventh, Then Pound Hurler

Albany High made it two straight Friday at Huntsville taking an 8-5 victory over the high school of that city in a seventh inning rally. The high boys had difficulty with Anderson, Huntsville lefthander, until the 5th, Huntsville leading 4-0. Spencer was hit hard throughout the game but was given excellent support.

Huntsville got away to an early lead, piling up four runs in the first five innings. Albany was unable to count until the sixth, then the Albany offensive parade began, the Huntsville finger being lifted too late to check the damage. Albany scored 7 in the 7th for a lead that could not be overcome.

Papenburg, local catcher, was injured in sliding into home plate, suffering a sprained ankle.

Following is the lineup:

Albany	Huntsville
Singleton, cf	Ward lf
Sharp 2b	Graham 1b
Mitchell 1b	Robertson 3b
Papenburg c	Williams ss
Evans ss	Herrin 2b
C. Johnson lf	Henry rf
Pride 3b	Putman cf
A. Johnson rf	Parsons c
Spencer, p	Anderson p

Two games are scheduled next week with Florence and St. Bernard both games being played away from home.
